DIALOGUE

UNCLE SAM & BROTHER JONATHAN. {21}

By DANIEL DE LEON

BRO. JONATHAN: What would you think of a fellow making Dynamite bombs; creeping into a labor union; telling its members that they can “free” themselves by the “economic movement”; never opposing the political heelers of the Republicans and Democrats, but working with them, hand in glove; and then telling and writing lies about the Socialists, who, at present, are recognized, the world over, as the only formidable power, feared, hated and persecuted by the capitalists and their Hessian tools?

UNCLE SAM: I should say he was a Pinkerton spy.
